Dear General Walters:

It is a distinct pleasure for me to express my personal thanks, and those of the faculty and students of the National Senior Intelligence Course, for your presentation, 19 March, on the "Functions of the DCI." The faculty and students were impressed and inspired with your candid and dynamic approach to intelligence. The presentation provided the School with a unique perspective drawn from your diversified experience and responsible position.

Your willingness to personally support our curricula has been a major contribution to our teaching mission. We are deeply grateful for your generous assistance.

Sincerely,

W. J. Furnas
